SOVIET MOON EXPLORER — This drawing of the Soviet Union's Moonrover 1 vehicle depicts it leaving the landing stage of Luna-17, according to Tass, official Soviet news service. The Russians claim their self-propelling lunar craft is rolling over the Moon's Sea of Rains in an "incredible experiment" that opens a new era in space exploration.

Witnesses Say No Hostile Fire From My Lai

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — John Paul testified today at the court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. that he saw the bodies of 15 Vietnamese men, women and children strewn along the north-south trail near the village of My Lai.

Paul, 23, a former radioman with Charley Company, also testified—as did four other witnesses earlier—that he saw no hostile fire coming from the village on March 16, 1968.

The testimony came in the third day of the court-martial of Calley, 27, charged with four specific acts of murdering 102 unarmed Vietnamese civilians on that date.

Paul's testimony corroborated that of former Spec. 4 Frank Beardslee and former Army combat photographer Ronald Haeblerle, who also said they saw masses of dead bodies along the trail.

Paul, a stocky blond from Jupiter, Fla., was a radioman for Capt. Ernest Medina, who commanded Charley Company during the assault on My Lai.

Under cross-examination, Paul was asked by Calley's Army defense lawyer, Maj. Kenneth Raby, if he received a call from a helicopter. He said he had.

Asked to describe the nature of the call, Paul replied:

"They were dropping smoke on bodies in the rice paddies and wanted us to move out and check the bodies for weapons."

Under direct questioning from Army prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey Daniel III, Paul said he saw no hostile fire in his general area. But asked what he heard, he replied, "A heavy volume of fire from the edge of the village."

Asked if he had any communication with Medina, right after the landing at the village, Paul replied: "Capt. Medina inquired what all the shooting was about and requested it be stopped so

Arrest Pair For Fraud

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two men, one a former branch bank manager, have been arrested in connection with misapplication of $135,000 in bank funds, the FBI announced.

Agents said Harry C. McKelvey, 45, now living in North Canton, Ohio, and Merrill H. Klein, 44, of Finleyville were picked up Wednesday after a federal grand jury returned a 21-count indictment against them. Bond was set at $2,500 apiece.

McKelvey was charged with misapplication and Klein—who allegedly received a number of loans from McKelvey—with conspiracy.

The indictment said McKelvey misapplied $21,600 while manager of Mellon Bank's Canonsburg branch and $114,200 while manager of Western Pennsylvania National's McKeesport branch.

A third man who has since died was named in the indictment as a co-conspirator.

Soviet Moon Lab Keeps Operating

BOCHUM, Germany (AP) — The director of the West German Space Observatory said today that the Soviet mobile moon laboratory may keep operating indefinitely and explore a wide area of the moon's surface.

Heinz Kaminski, the director of the Bochum Institute, said such robot modules are the most economical means of exploring the moon and do the job without risking human lives.

He said a rough analysis of the data collected by his radio telescopes from the Robot, Lunokhod 1, shows it has another two to three days of sunlight to work in before lunar night sets in and the moon's temperature sinks to about minus 238 degrees Fahrenheit. This lunar night will last about 14 days.

"Lunokhod 1 is surely designed to survive this extremely low temperature for a fortnight with its batteries keeping the inside working temperature. After sunrise, its activities can then continue," Kaminski said.

After that, Lunokhod 1 could start a permanent mobile exploration of the Sea of Rains and the adjoining Sea of Storms, in all a distance of about 1,500 kilometers," or 940 miles.

The Russians have given no indication of the extent of Lunokhod's mission.

Kaminski said there is practically no limit to Lunokhod's radius of operation and the space of time it can operate in "unless it is halted by unfortunate circumstances."

"Lunokhod 1 can therefore be considered an improved, and in particular a mobile version of the American Surveyor series," he said.

He suggested that simultaneous systems could explore all of the moon's surface and supply scientists with the data necessary to determine the condition and origin of the moon. From these data scientists could also determine the best site for construction of a permanent manned laboratory on the Moon, Kaminski said.

Guard Darrell Marcum, 23, told Cardwell he was on routine rounds along the northeast wall about 7 p.m. when he heard noises from the ground. He said a man dressed in khaki work clothes was coiling a knotted rope with a hook at the end.

The man drew a hand gun and shot twice, Marcum said. He added the man fled into a field adjoining the prison where another man stood up.

Marcum said the man fired at him again and he returned three shots from his service shotgun. The pair then fled across the field toward railroad tracks.

Cardwell said no one inside the prison was involved in the attempted break-in. The warden added he could not say whether the attempt might have been one to free Black Panther leader Ahmed Evans.

Evans of Cleveland is now on death row. He was convicted on seven counts of first-degree murder last year.

Columbus police, Franklin County deputy sheriffs and Ohio Highway Patrol officers surrounded the prison walls after Marcum had sounded an alarm and several guard dogs were brought in to search the area.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has suggested expanding Ohio's thoroughbred racing season to help big cities finance convention centers and sports arenas.

Rhodes unveiled a preliminary proposal Wednesday formulated by his office after consulting with the mayors, county commissioners, chambers of commerce and other officials in the Toledo, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Columbus areas. A thoroughbred race track is operated in each of the communities.

The proposal, outlined at a statewide press conference, calls for doubling the current racing season from 50 to 100 days, and returning the additional state revenues to racing localities for major construction projects.

Rhodes said the additional and ever-growing income from racing would make the sale of

Expect Debate On Cambodian Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked Congress to supply swiftly $155 million in military and economic aid to Cambodia, a proposal likely to rekindle Senate debate about his policy in Southeast Asia.

The funds for Cambodia, and $65 million for South Vietnam, were part of a $1-billion boost in foreign aid that Nixon asked Congress to enact this year. About half the total, some $500 million, would go to help Israel build her military strength.

But even Republicans acknowledged it might be difficult, despite "urgent needs" Nixon cited in his special aid message, to win enactment of the package during the current, lame-duck session of Congress.

Sen. Gordon Allot of Colorado, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, said he had some doubts that action would come this year.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and a leading critic of Southeast Asian policies, wouldn't guess at a timetable.

Nixon briefed Senate leaders on his proposal at the White House Wednesday. At a separate background briefing for newsmen a high administration official outlined the administration's rationale, saying past aid to Cambodia already has helped the Vietnam war effort.

The official told newsmen three North Vietnamese divisions have been pulled out of South Vietnam and into Cambodia, and another was withdrawn from South Vietnam into south Laos.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader, said after talking with Nixon he was willing to consider the President's proposal provided it would help speed withdrawal of American troops.

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Marine helicopter returning to Da Nang with a crippled patrol crashed into a mountain side in the fog Wednesday, killing all 15 Marines aboard.

It was the worst crash in Vietnam since Aug. 26, when a big CH47 Chinook helicopter was shot down southeast of Da Nang and 31 U.S. Army men were killed.

Among the dead in Wednesday's crash was Lt. Col. William Leftwich of Memphis, Tenn., Tennessee's Man of the Year in 1965.

The helicopter, a medium-size CH46, crashed in the Que Son range about 22 miles southwest of Da Nang.

The U.S. Command said the cause of the crash was unknown, but other sources said fog and poor visibility apparently were responsible.

The wreckage was found on the side of the mountain and all of the bodies were recovered today by a Marine ground team landed by helicopters.

The ill-fated CH46 had lifted out a small Marine patrol from the Que Son mountains and was returning to the unit's base in Da Nang when it got lost in the clouds, field reports said. Another helicopter following it could not spot the craft and lost radio contact.

"The patrol in the Que Son mountains got into trouble," said one officer. "One man broke his leg and two more came down with fever. They called back and asked for a helicopter to lift them out."

Leftwich decided to pull out the entire patrol. Informed sources said he had always gone in after his men when there was an emergency, and he was the first aboard the 45-foot-long CH46 that was assigned to lift out the team.

Leftwich was serving his second tour in Vietnam. He was an adviser to South Vietnamese Marines from February 1965 until February 1966. At that time, (Continued on Page 2)

U.S. Aids Starving Pakistanis

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP) — The delivery of relief supplies to stricken areas of East Pakistan gets a small boost today and the arrival of six U.S. helicopters. But the operation is with air drops from one plane lagging badly because of the absence of Pakistani air force helicopters.

Relief Commissioner A. M. Anisuzzaman told a news conference Wednesday that many thousands of survivors of the cyclone and tidal waves that struck Friday are still in grave danger because they have not received help. He said there are still "very inaccessible places with which we have not yet had contact."

The Pakistani air force has some helicopters, but most are in West Pakistan and would have to cross hostile India. Three times during the news conference Anisuzzaman refused to answer questions about the failure of the military to provide more aircraft.

Other relief officials said there also had been a delay in the arrival of U.S. helicopters because the Pakistani government tried to specify that its pilots fly them. When the United States refused, the Pakistanis backed down.

Two American helicopters were due today from Nepal. Four others expected tonight will not be ready to fly again before Saturday. Britain also is sending two helicopters.

Otherwise Anisuzzaman's air force consists of a military C130 Hercules freighter which was to start drops today, one military helicopter which had to be grounded for maintenance after 14 hours aloft, one short-takeoff-and-landing plane, and the only seaplane in East Pakistan.

Pickaway-Ross Vo Ed Board Discusses Proposed School

By MICHELE HULSE
Herald Staff Writer

An opportunity to learn more about some of the background, initial planning and programming for the proposed vocational school was offered to Pickaway Countians Wednesday evening.

An estimated 90 persons were in attendance at the meeting held at Circleville Junior High School. Members of the joint vo-ed board were sponsors of the program which was organized to introduce citizens to some of the work that had been done in planning the school.

Beginning over five years ago in individual attempts to get such an institution started, no actual accomplishments were seen until last year, when state legislators stepped in, requiring vocational training schools be made available for students. Locally, June 18, 1970 was the kickoff date with approval of the State Board of Education on initial plans for formation. At that time, eleven Rossand Pickaway County schools were included in the proposal. Since that time Laureville school district was added from Hocking County.

Funding from the 12 districts will be provided by bond issue and tax levy as any other public school. Introduced for consideration was a proposal including 1.7 mills for operating expenses and a six-tenths mill bond issue to cover the district's share of the building program over a 20-year period. Estimated costs bring the building figure to $4,600,000. Of this, half has been covered by a state grant for the program.

FOR operation, the school is expected to require $870,000 annually. Local voters will need to provide $530,000 of this cost and the rest be provided by a second state allotment.

At the vocational board meeting recently, members also suggested two other funding proposals. One will use the same operating millage with a 25 year bond issue of approximately .55 mill to cover the local share of building costs.

The third proposal will involve a combination bond and operating funds on one levy over a 10-year period. All proposals are still tentative. Final decision will be made at the board's December meeting as to which will appear on the May ballot.

The speakers noted that the state will not release its grants to the school before the district can prove it will support both building and operation. This required passage of both issues if the district is to receive state funds.

Plans call for final work to be completed in 1973 if the levy and bond issues pass in 1971 and construction begun early in 1972. School opening is proposed for the 1973 school term. Maximum enrollment for the initial project 1,015. Enrollment the first year is expected to be around 750, a figure arrived at by taking 20 per cent of projected junior-senior class enrollment of all 12 participating districts.

Five general areas of study are proposed and have received state department approval. These include agriculture, business and office, distributive (Continued on Page 2)

County Airport To Be Dedicated

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled Sunday for Pickaway County's new Veterans Memorial Airport.

Ohio Governor James A. Rhodes will officiate at the dedication to be held beginning 2 p.m. at the north end of the 4500-foot runway.

Robert Johnson, Airport Authority chairman, today extended an invitation to the public to attend the "long awaited event." Plans were made for the impromptu dedication early Thursday. The short notice in the announcement came as the result of scheduling to accommodate Governor Rhodes.

The governor and other dignitaries will arrive via aircraft. A varied display of planes is expected for the afternoon dedication.

Other details of the ceremony will be announced as soon as they are confirmed.

Circleville Jaycees are assisting the Airport Authority with the planning. Members of the Authority in addition to Johnson, are John Dunlap, Frank Bowling Jr., John Stevenson and Richard L. Davis.

Long-Disputed Farm Bill Set For Another Round

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate opponents of an administration-backed farm bill are maneuvering for a new round in a legislative battle that has raged from a blocked Senate door to the White House to farm-belt ballot boxes.

The opponents' claim the administration's bill would cost the nation's farmers more than a billion dollars in income by 1973.

Led by Sen. George McGovern, a Democrat from wheat-raising South Dakota, the group of 30 or more senators moved to pressure for House approval of a bill more akin to one first passed by the Senate.

The senators point to signs of farmer anger displayed at voting places in the Nov. 3 election. They raise the specter of no new farm programs at all if defenders of the administration-backed bill continue on what they term an "intransigent" course.

The McGovern forces hoped to convince the Senate to turn down the report of a House-Senate conference committee which wrote a compromise bill earlier this year after one of the stormiest sessions in memory.

This would send the bill back to conference and instruct conferees to stick to main provisions of the Senate-passed bill.

McGovern has ready an alternative bill repeating all the non-controversial sections of the new measure and continuing for a year provisions of present law tied to disputed items in the new bill.

The Senate declined to act on the conference report before the elections. For a time, Democratic leaders refused to allow a messenger from the House to enter the Senate chamber to deliver it.

President Nixon, in a sternly worded rebuke, called the delay a "very grave disservice to the American farmer."

Some political observers view election results in some farm areas as a rejection by many farmers of the President's farm program. It is intended primarily to put agricultural production on a market-oriented footing.

Leaders of some farm groups, especially among Plains-state growers of winter wheat and feed grain, say they see grave dangers of worsening farm income through erosion of the parity concept and farm price support floors.

After that, Rhodes said, the recommendations "will be their (the legislators') problem."

"The incoming governor will look upon this and measure it for what it is worth," Rhodes said.

Democratic Gov.-elect Gilligan takes office Jan. 11.

In a question-and-answer period, Rhodes refused to rule out another try for political office in the future.

He also refused to comment on a suggestion by Republican

U.S. Sen.-elect Robert Taft Jr. that the Ohio GOP be reorganized in the wake of its Nov. 3 election setback.

Rhodes did say "The party in the last eight years has been highly successful." He added he favored keeping GOP State Chairman John Andrews on as the party's manager.

"I think he is a very competent and able man," Rhodes said.

Urge Sport Centers From Horse Race Take

Rhodes' proposal would give each race track community share of additional racing revenues. Profits earned in one area would be returned to that area, he said.

The outgoing governor said this and a number of other proposals relating to the growth of the state would be presented to the 109th General Assembly when he addresses the body Jan. 5.

Rare Blood Saves Child

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — An Akron rubber worker with rare blood qualities has been credited with saving the lives of two babies of the Leo Stalter family of nearby Clinton.

The worker, Sam Auerbach, who called from his job last week to save the life of infant George Stalter, born five weeks premature. Auerbach was informed until Wednesday that the baby was the brother of Kathryn Stalter, who he saved six years ago with a transfusion.

Officials said Auerbach, a Red Cross blood donor nearing the seven gallon mark, has O negative blood with qualities of three other types in the C negative, E negative, and Duffy A negative.

Officials said only four other persons in the Akron area are recorded as having the same blood qualities.

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's "Music Hall" seems to have struck a rich vein. Last week, it gathered together a lot of impersonators. This week it pulled together some famous TV sleuths and permitted them to make some fun of their peers.

It opened with Don Adams, late of "Get Smart," using an approximate simulation of Humphrey Bogart's voice to parody "The Maltese Falcon." Raymond Burr of "Ironside" played the villainous Sydney Greenstreet role.

David Janssen, once of "Richard Diamond," came along as "Dragnet's" Sgt. Joe Friday with a lot of Jack Webb's staccato dialogue that led to the punch line and black out.

Adams was involved in a too-long sketch, with much yelling, purporting to show the private life of Eliott Ness, chief of the "Untouchables."

Burr, who rarely has a chance to do comedy, clowning in a funny hat as radio's "Mr. Keen, Tracer of Lost Persons."

Rap Police Riot Errors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus police made "many mistakes" on Ohio State University's campus last spring and may have been the precipitating factor in the student riots of April 29, according to Columbus Safety Director James J. Hughes.

Hughes, who spoke to some 100 graduate students on the campus Wednesday, said the student disorders were "home grown" and the result of a "marriage" between a small number of anarchists and a much larger group of "disaffected" students.

Police, he said, can cause the marriage by using too much force against the small group, bringing sympathetic students from the larger group to the small group's aid.

That, he added, appeared to be the case of the first day of rioting last spring. Police learned from their mistakes, said Hughes, and reacted more efficiently when the second wave of violence came May 21.

Train Derails Near Coshocton; Tank Car Leaks

COSHOCOTON, Ohio (AP) — Penn Central crews worked through the night to clean up the wreckage of a 25-car freight train derailment south of here.

A railroad spokesman said workmen also were attempting to repair a leak in a tank car containing a highly inflammable liquid. The liquid was not identified.

As a precaution against the possibility of an explosion, the sheriff's department evacuated 100 employees of the nearby St. Regis Paper Co. Wednesday and roped off the area to keep people away.

No one was hurt in the accident. The cause of the derailment was not known. There was no estimate of damage.

OFBF Chief Sees Tax Revision Top Need

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Farm Bureau Federation President Robert Summer said today tax revision will work in this state "if we work to make it happen."

He said the farm bureau's "thing" for 1971 is revising the tax structure so the burden is more equitably carried by all Ohio wage-earners.

Summer told delegates to the federation's 52nd annual meeting here tax revision is one of three important issues facing them which "dramatically point out the difference between doing our thing or letting someone else dictate what we do."

Legislative proposals before the convention call for a state tax on individual and corporate income, including provisions for property tax relief, and establishment of collective bargaining procedures between farmers and food corporations and farmers and farm laborers.

Summer said no one doubts the government's need for additional revenue. "The question is," he said, "which taxpayers will pay the bill."

He said the farm bureau believes all should pay in proportion to their ability.

Wednesday, an Ohio State University professor of administrative science suggested the legislature should not touch municipal income taxes when considering a state income tax.

"If municipalities fish in the same stream as the state, it will be more difficult for local governments to increase their rates in the future," Dr. Frederick D. Stocker said at a convention meeting on tax revision.

He argued against a county collected and administered income tax because "it might be difficult in the future to generate funds for state programs."

If a state income tax is approved, Stocker said, at least 50 per cent must be returned to local governments—city, county or school district.

U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, told delegates Wednesday the U.S. should reduce defense spending abroad.

He said it costs the United States $14 billion annually—about equal to America's budget deficit—to support NATO. In addition, Saxbe said, there are 350,000 U.S. troops and dependents in Europe.

"If we do have a Russian breakthrough," he said, "it's going to be the dependents that will clog the roads first."

Prior to the speech, Saxbe told newsmen he supports the Ohio Republican organization and state GOP Chairman John Andrews. He said he thought the party came out of the Nov. 3 election pretty well considering the statehouse loan scandal.

Asked about a call by Sen. elect Robert Taft Jr. for a reorganization of the state Republican Party organization, Saxbe, who repeatedly has criticized the Senate's slow said he thinks the new season of Congress will be more productive because it will not be an election year.

He predicted farm and appropriations bills will pass and the family assistance bill will fail.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost everyone would like to live to a ripe old age—but before you can be old you first have to be middle-aged.

That's the fly in the ointment. Many who think of old age as a time of golden serenity before the final curtain regard middle age with a feeling akin to horror. To them it is a kind of second adolescence—more gruesome than the first one.

The odd thing about it is that people often become middle-aged without even being aware of it. The mental and physical symptoms creep up on them so subtly they are unnoticed. How can one tell if this is happening to him?

Well, you are getting middle-aged if—

When you sign an apartment lease you have to trust your landlord, because it is simply too much trouble to read the fine print.

At a cocktail party you prefer to talk with people who share your prejudices. That way you don't have to bother to think.

You don't really mind young people as long as they stay in their place. Their place is some other place than where you are.

When you go into your doctor's office, you both know even before he opens his mouth just what it is he is going to tell you that you should give up "for your own good."

Now that at last you have a little something to leave to others, you know you should have a lawyer redraft the will you made the first year of your marriage—but you keep postponing the chore from month to month. Secretly, you have the fear that making out a new will might bring some form of bad luck.

You don't go fishing as much as you used to, because if you did catch a big one worth bringing home it would be such a nuisance to clean and scale it.

You can count on the fingers of one hand all the close friends you have left from childhood; on the fingers of the other hand, the close friends you have made since then; on your thumbs, those you could borrow money from readily and without embarrassment.

A lot of small favors for others you used to do gladly and graciously you now do grumpily and grudgingly.

The road you drank one for the night before, inevitably leads you the next morning to the aspirin bottle.

You decide not to worry about today's big new world crisis, because you may need your strength to worry about a newer and even bigger world crisis tomorrow.

Yes, you're middle-aged, all right. But if you don't relax and enjoy it, you may not live long enough to see the serenity of old age you look forward to.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A PIOUS and incredibly dull teetotaler lived a spotless life and in due time went by his reward in Heaven.

There he was discovered one day by an old neighbor from down below on earth, sitting on a big cloud with a ravishing blonde on his lap. "Wow!" exclaimed the neighbor, "you sure have been given your reward."

"Reward, my eye," snarled the teetotaler. "I'm her punishment."

Rod Dangerfield confesses that when he was a nine-year-old, his indulgent father took him to a circus. The Barker at the side show, however, proposed to Papa Dangerfield, "We'll pay you twice what your tickets cost to get that kid of yours out of here. He's distracting attention from the professional freaks."

Folks in the Adirondack section of New York State point with pride to Mt. Marcy (5,344 feet high)—the tallest point in the Empire State. They were understandably miffed, therefore, when a touring professor from the U.S. Air Force Academy, located at the foot of Pike's Peak in Colorado (14,110 feet) innocently referred to Mt. Marcy, in a speech at Lake Placid, as a "foothill."

Remember the day Pope Paul VI addressed a vast assembly in New York's Yankee Stadium? Chet Huntley stood next to a little Italian priest that evening who exclaimed happily, "Isn't it wonderful, at last, to have an Italian back at second base!"

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Our 7-year-old boy is quiet and passive at home, but at school he is described as an absolute tyrant.

It is difficult for us to believe his teacher's complaints. We wonder if it is the fault of the school or us. What do you suggest?

Mr. and Mrs. T.W., Delaware
Dear Mr. and Mrs. W.: It is good to know that you are not reacting to this problem as many other parents do. Far too often parents become angry and upset when teachers report behavior problems in class.

It is highly possible that a child brought up in a rigid authoritarian manner may break loose when he is away from home. Often these children become aggressive, even destructive. They can become unbearable to their teachers and to their classmates.

To satisfy yourself, why don't you observe your child in school without his being aware of your presence and learn if his behavior there differs from his behavior at home. If it does, then it is imperative that your child be given the advantage of psychological tests to find out why he is emotionally upset.

If necessary, a neurological examination and a brain-wave test may be suggested by his physician in an effort to rule out any fundamental physical disorder. It is astonishing how often the observant school teacher first points out the need for investigation of a child's behavior. Her astute and dedicated interest in her pupils should be commended rather than resented.

My daughter was injured while riding her bicycle. The bleeding from a deep wound was stopped by a policeman.

Our doctor says that this certainly saved her life.

In one of your articles, you spoke of the contribution that the police and the fire department make for our safety. I want to add my thanks to them, and my confirmation of your feelings about them.

Mrs. C. S. Penna
Dear Mrs. S.: In this age of "sophisticated" hostility for the policeman and fireman, it is gratifying to read a letter like yours. These courageous civil servants are constantly helping their fellowman without regard for their own lives or safety.

In my many years of medical practice, I have witnessed innumerable examples of their

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Nov. 19, the 323rd day of 1970. There are 42 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1863, Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address.

On this date: In 1493, Christopher Columbus landed on the western shore of Puerto Rico.

In 1497, Vasco da Gama discovered the passage to India around the Cape of Good Hope.

In 1794, the Jay Treaty was signed with Britain, adjusting the controversies left unsettled by the treaty which ended the American Revolution.

In 1874, the Women's Christian Temperance Union was organized in Cleveland.

In 1919, the U.S. Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles after World War I.

Ten years ago: Secretary of State Douglas Dillon left for Europe to discuss the outflow of gold and dollars from the United States.

Five years ago: A federal court jury convicted the U.S. Communist party of failing to register as an agent of the Soviet Union.

One year ago: The Apollo 12 astronauts landed on the moon, right on target.

Until recently, mint farmers in Oregon and Washington, the country's biggest growers of the fragrant herb, relied on flocks of geese to keep fields free of weeds.

However, new generations of geese were constantly needed because after a couple of seasons veteran geese learned to tolerate, even enjoy, the concentrated taste of the mint plant. And if left in the fields their usual meals of weeds became mint flavored.

Arms For S. Africa

By JEFFREY HART

The time is rapidly approaching when the Conservative (Tory) government of Edward Heath — and, of course, Parliament — must make up their collective minds on the issue of selling helicopters, frigates, naval armaments and seaborne missiles to South Africa. The campaign against a decision favorable to South Africa is mounting in intensity. Thus Anthony Lewis of the New York Times has devoted his column to denouncing the idea and has filed several news stories from London purporting to show how disastrous such a deal would prove. Clearly much more is at stake here than the transfer of a few coast-guard type vessels and so on to the South African government.

The official Tory argument is palpably absurd. Foreign Secretary Douglas Home argues that Britain will sell South Africa only equipment to be used externally, and, specifically, equipment useful in protecting sea routes around the Cape. He adds, for good measure, evidence that the Soviet navy has seriously increased its strength in the Indian Ocean. To this the opposition Labour Party answer is crushing: First, what difference will a few frigates make in the face of a genuine naval power? Do you fight cruisers and aircraft carriers with frigates? Second, do you risk the certainty of an adverse black African response to forestall only the probability — or possibility — of a Soviet threat to the vital Cape routes? And third, isn't the morality of selling any kind of arms to the white South Africans doubtful?

The Labour Party arguments, in my opinion, utterly destroy the avowed Conservative position. But the Heath government's real argument has not been avowed. It is a profound one, a radical one and in conventional terms an outrageous one.

The Tories mean to provide arms for South Africa not in spite of white supremacy but because of it. The Tories, to be sure, do not much like apartheid, and they certainly do not approve of the police state methods often used to enforce it.

Nevertheless, they consider white South Africa, wars and all, to be part of Western civilization. Whereas Labour Party opinion thinks that racism, internationally, is a major problem, the Tory view rests on the opinion that internationally Russia is the major problem.

It is a profound difference. The Tories think that white South Africa can be counted upon to stand with the West — and, finally, with England — in any confrontation with the principal Communist power. They do not think the same can be said of any of the black African nations. Were the white South African government to be overthrown by some black "liberation" movement, the country, with all its resources and strategic location, would become just another "Third World" micro-power.

Tory strategists I have talked with in London argue forcefully that the real power contest in the world, the one that matters, pits the technologically advanced Western nations, plus Japan, against Eurasian Communist power based upon land mass and upon mass populations. They have a sense of English history and they do not think that masses and land armies necessarily have to triumph over advanced and clever minorities. All of the British experience is against it. Nor do they think that the Third World is going to close the technological gap in the near future, if ever. They also perceive that the backward countries do not have any particular stake in Western and European survival. Many such countries in fact look to international disorder and to revolution to solve their problems.

To the Labour Party desire for global racial equality, there is a tough Tory rejoinder. This holds that such equality can come about not through raising the Third World countries to the Western level, which is impossible, but only through lowering the advanced countries to the Third World level. The Tories reject this implication of Labour Party goals.

But does the Tory position concede the entire undeveloped world to the Soviets? No necessarily. The Tories argue that if the advanced nations, particularly in Europe, achieve some sort of common-market type consolidation, they can deploy their overwhelming economic power that the Third World nations will have to remain cooperative and swallow their resentment.

It is a profound thesis, debated among British intellectuals on its merits, without the gooey American moralism. And of course it is worth noting that in the Middle East the United States finds itself more naturally in alliance with the technologically advanced Israelis than with the revolutionary Arab nationalists.

Dear Editor:

I am writing in regards to a situation in our community that disturbs me greatly. How many times do we citizens and taxpayers read in our local newspaper the court proceedings? When we read about persons being captured, found guilty and sentenced; do most of us take for granted these persons have been taken care of and their debt to society will be paid? On second thought, do we see names of persons, then read on to see they have been confined to jail for thirty, sixty, or ninety days? Yet, to our amazement these people several days later circulating in society? A lot of people observe this but few take time to see why these people are released.

How many sentences have not been served? How many fines are on the books that have never been paid? We pay taxes to keep law enforced, but when law breakers break the law they are taken to jail and many of them are only in jail for a few short days of their sentence then released. Crime is running rampant in our world today. Much of our news is connected in this area.

We must first of all decide what we expect of ourselves, our families, and then of our community. Parents, I ask you, when will your offspring learn crime does not pay if you pull strings, talk to the right people and shelter them? There will come a time when you will not be able to protect them. I feel very strongly if a person gets "off the hook" more than once, the chance of very serious crime in the future is probable. Maybe even death will result in a chase by law officers. We have a moral and spiritual obligation to God. We also have an obligation to society.

A young lady was in my home some weeks ago. She went on to tell "how unfair the law and local newspaper were." A certain young man had been treated "unjust." We hashed over this case as it was brought out by the newspaper on Tuesday, September 29, 1970 on page 2. Local man fined $200, jailed 90 days for DWI, he pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated. He was also charged with driving while his license was under suspension and attempting to flee an officer. The patrolman told the judge it was the third time in less than six months he had been charged with drunk driving. He also noted this man had several OMVI cases pending trial by jury in Circleville Municipal Court. The patrolman encountered quite an ordeal with this young man. While enroute to OSP post, the subject attempted to jump out of the cruiser at 65 mph. The patrolman slowed the cruiser and tried to hold him in the car. However, he jumped out before it came to a stop. He fled on foot but was caught about 200 yards from the highway.

Going back to the young lady mentioned earlier; a few days later she came to my home again. She had since visited the man in jail.

"He said his father was having a hard time getting him off the hook and this time it wouldn't be as easy as in the past."

I was foolish enough to make the statement getting him out now after being sentenced, and fined, and committed to jail was impossible. The very next day I was told by this young lady, "I didn't realize knowing the right people when in a jam makes all the difference!"

Checking this out, I find no fine has been paid and this person checks in and out of the Pickaway County jail like it was a hotel, instead of a penal institution. Anyone can check this record at the municipal court case number 58177; also in the jail register slate numbers 24855, 24892, 24963, 24993.

I had heard some months ago the man that made the bomb threats in April of 1969 did not serve his sentence. So, curious about this case, I also looked up his record. I found he was fined $500 and costs and sentenced to six months in jail three months suspended. This man was committed April 24, 1969. He was released on April 28, 1969 by order of Municipal Judge. The fine has not been paid nor has he been returned to jail. The record of this can be found in Municipal Court case number 55329. Also in the jail register slate number 23052.

I challenge the people of this community to stand up for law enforcement. If there is some explanation why some people are sentenced and fined, only to be released before their debt is paid, I along with several others are waiting to hear it.

Hatlo's They'll Do It Every Time

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The commercial paper market has long been an unglamorous area of high finance, a market in which large corporations routinely lent or borrowed from each other for short periods.

Commercial paper is an unsecured note. A company seldom can afford to keep any excess cash idle, so it lends it to another company or institution, perhaps through a dealer, for a few days or up to 270 days.

Single deals run into many millions of dollars, and the amount outstanding now totals more than $30 billion, but the business had always been conducted solely among professionals, and so quietly as to be unknown to the public.

No longer. The default by Penn Central Transportation on its commercial paper has shaken professionals who felt there was no danger in such investments. And hearings may provide the public with a fascinating insight into this hidden world.

The background involves, among other things, incredible laxness and naivete on the part of professional money men; a misunderstanding of responsibilities; and a puzzling lack of knowledge about the product dealt in, the quality of the paper being bought and sold.

Regarding the last point: The Penn Central was one of the most highly publicized corporations in America. Presumably, as much or more information was known about this operation as any other, with tons available from Interstate Commerce Commission Hearings and proceedings leading to the merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads.

And yet, some of its directors were uncertain about its financial condition until a few days before it filed for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws.

The firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co., which bought and resold Penn Central paper, believed one month before the collapse that the company was sound.

Goldman, Sachs, is now being sued for $23 million in damages by a large mutual fund and three other businesses which bought quantities of the railroad's paper through it.

Insurance companies, banks and other corporations which bought the paper also are angry at commercial paper dealers, feeling that the dealers failed to properly inform them about purchases.

The dealers believe they have no obligation other than to present all available information and add that, furthermore, all purchasers of commercial paper have equal access to the facts on their own.

But many professionals who purchased Penn Central paper concede they forgot that paper was an investment involving risk. They forgot about the need for the buyer to beware. They failed to ask questions a child would ask before buying candy.

Supreme Court May Hear Auto Pollution Suit

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision appears imminent on a drive by 17 states to have the Supreme Court consider their suit charging the major auto manufacturers with conspiring to delay the development of anti-smog devices.

The states want the court to order General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors to equip all their cars built since 1953 with devices that would cut down the 67.3 million tons of carbon monoxide released annually from auto exhausts.

That would mean going to work on an estimated 85 to 100 million used cars. Even if the court agrees to consider the matter, such an order is a long way off, however. First the 17 states, headed by Washington, must persuade the justices the Supreme Court is the only suitable forum to settle the suit swiftly.

The states would have to win their argument that the four manufacturers are guilty of conspiracy in violation of the Sherman antitrust Act.

Frederic C. Tausend, a special assistant attorney general for Washington state, seemed hopeful in a telephone interview that the court would at least consider the suit.

If the states are turned down, Tausend said, they will consider filing the same kind of joint suit in a federal district court.

Attorneys for GM, Chrysler, Ford, American Motors and a fifth defendant, the Automobile

Manufacturers Association, argue the Supreme Court is the wrong place for the kind of complex trial that would be required.

The states say, however, a final decision could take 10 years to reach if suits had to make their way up through several federal courts.

Though this suit does not seek damages, 17 damage suits have been filed in courts across the country by parties ranging from the states of New York and Minnesota to an apricot farmer in California. Last September, federal judge Manuel L. Real of Los Angeles agreed to hold a hearing on the possibility of combining these suits.

The states filed their motion for Supreme Court consideration August 5. The defendants replied October 3. The court could issue its decision on whether to hold a hearing next Monday, just before beginning a two-week recess.

In the closing days of the Johnson administration the Justice Department charged the four auto makers and their association with conspiracy.

The government, however, dropped the case under the Nixon administration but a consent decree restrained the defendants from any future conspiracy without pressing for a judgment on any past violations and without the auto makers admitting any guilt.

This did not prevent the states or individuals from pushing ahead with their own lawsuits. The complaint to the Supreme Court was signed by Washington, Illinois, Arizona, Colorado, Hawaii, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia, North Dakota and West Virginia.

Budget Cuts May Set Back Head Start Work Badly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Nixon's commitment to promote the welfare of preschool children, administration and congressional budget cutting may turn away an estimated 10,000 youngsters from the Head Start program.

With the House paring funds for the preschool program to $321 million, Dr. Edward F. Sigler, director of Health, Education and Welfare's Office of Child Development, has told regional Head Start officials to plan for a money reduction averaging between 7 and 10 percent for the fiscal year ending next June 21.

Head Start officials say a $321 million appropriation would result in at least 10,000 children being turned away from the program.

The fund cut "will mean different things in different communities," Sigler said in an interview. "In some it will mean cutting out lightly-attended programs, in others cutting back summer programs; and in some kicking children out of ongoing full-year programs that stretch over two years.

"The one thing I absolutely refuse to do, however, is sacrifice quality by offering reduced services to the same number of children," he said.

Head Start officials estimate $350 million is required to finance the education, nutrition, and health services now offered the 263,000 children in full year programs and 209,000 children in summer programs for the disadvantaged.

President Nixon—who promised in February 1969 "to provide all American children an opportunity for healthful and stimulating development during the first five years of life"—requested $339 million for Head Start.

The administration, however, did not ask Congress for more after it became clear $350 million was required to maintain the program at present levels.

And the House then cut the figure to $321 million.

The prospective cutback, however, has produced protests from parents and Head Start or-

Mitchell May Take Stand In My Lai Massacre Trial

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP) — Sgt. David Mitchell seemed likely to take the stand today as the final defense witness of his court-martial on a charge of assault with intent to murder at My Lai.

Asked whether he would put his client on, Ossie Brown, Mitchell's attorney, told news- men Wednesday: "I think I should."

Later, he said: "I believe I will."

Brown had told the court at the end of Wednesday's session he had completed his evidence except for the possible testimony of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., who is himself being court-martialed at Ft. Benning, Ga., on charges of murdering 102 South Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

Brown told newsmen he understood that Calley, the sergeant's platoon leader at My Lai, wanted to testify in the Mitchell case but that his lawyer refused to permit it.

In two days, Brown called 20 witnesses, including James Dursi, a platoon member who said he helped push Vietnamese into a drainage ditch at My Lai on Calley's order but refused to shoot them.

Dursi said he saw Mitchell standing beside a hut away from the ditch after the shooting began.

Dursi, a New Yorker, said Paul Meadlo of Terre Haute, Ind., asked him why he was not shooting.

"I just couldn't," Dursi said. "I just refused to fire. I just said I can't and won't and looked down at the ground."

The defense called Meadlo and Allen Boyce of Braley Beach, N.J., both of whom declined to testify on the ground of possible self-incrimination.

The court permitted the defense to read to the jury sworn statements given by Meadlo and Boyce to Army investigators last year.

Boyce said in his statement that Meadlo was the only man he could positively identify who fired at civilians.

Meadlo named several men in his statement as having participated in the alleged shooting. Mitchell was not one of them.

Serving dinner for the Methodist Men on Dec. 3 will be Mrs. Hoyt Timmons, Mrs. Mildred Caldwell, Mrs. George Miller Sr. and Mrs. Foster Jenne.

Refreshments were served by hostesses Mrs. Gordon Hannigan, Mrs. Robert Bell and Mrs. Don Myers.

Garden Club
Therapy Aids
Institute

Monrovia Garden Club members visited residents of Orient State Institute recently. The club has therapy sessions with an average of 40 children every other month.

The November project was making a Thanksgiving centerpiece. Each child was given a square of styrofoam, a turkey made of felt, chrysanthemums, evergreen twigs and boxwood. The turkey was placed in the center of the styrofoam and the flowers and greens were placed around it to hide the base.

Each child made a scrapbook using colored construction paper with typing paper as the filler. Colored yarn tied the books after holes were made with a paper punch. My Book was written on the cover and signed by the children. The books were collected and when the club makes its next visit the children will paste a picture of the flower of the month and a verse in their books.

Pickaway County Women's Republican Club observed an early Thanksgiving Victory carry-in luncheon meeting Monday at the Circleville Presbyterian Church social rooms.

Chairman of the hostess committee was Mrs. Donald H. Watt. She was assisted by Miss Mary Jane Watt, Mrs. Mildred Hatfield, Mrs. C. P. Heiskell, Mrs. Lottie Graham and Mrs. Charles Pugsley.

Among the guests were Judge William Ammer and Sara M. Dresbach, clerk of courts. The guests were introduced by Mrs. H. O. Caldwell.

Brief business was enacted before Mrs. Caldwell presented a travelogue featuring her most recent tour of Alaska, Siberia and Canada. The limits of time did not permit completion of the trip and the remainder will be shown at the Dec. 21 covered-dish luncheon meeting 12:15 p.m. at the same location.

A vote of thanks was given hostesses and those who brought beautifully wrapped gifts for giving to Orient State Institute. Other members may bring gifts to the December meeting when hostesses will be Mrs. Lawrence Liston, Mrs. E. L. Sheets, Mrs. Herman Porter, Mrs. J. B. Work and Mrs. Bertha Porter.

UAW Nixes Back-To-Jobs Move By Some Workers

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Nursing Homes Cause Of Guilt Feeling

DEAR ABBY: I help run a very high class nursing home and there is something which puzzles me.

Why is it when a person has spent months and even years in our nursing home, and he dies here, the family doesn't want it mentioned in the obituary that their relative died in a nursing home?

Do you think it is because they are ashamed that their loved one didn't pass away at home under their family's care?

WONDERING: Some people still suffer some guilt feelings about putting a family member in a nursing home, especially if the nursing home is not regarded as first class. These feelings are quite unnecessary in most cases, of course. The nursing home is becoming more and more a commonplace institution in our society.

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with a devoted husband and four, beautiful, school-age children. Money, we have little, but we have been blessed. After struggling with this problem for years I have decided to write to you. Maybe one of your readers can help me.

Nothing will wake me up in the morning. I've tried everything I have ever heard of. Sleeping with the alarm clock next to my ear. Sleeping with the alarm clock clear across the room. Setting two alarm clocks on opposite sides of the room. I have even set one alarm clock in the dishpan.

Before I go to sleep I keep telling myself over and over that I must get up in the morning. The rest of my family is as sleepyheaded as I am, and if I don't wake everybody else up, we all oversleep. I hear the alarm, turn it off, and go back to sleep again. Can you help me?

SLEEPYHEAD: DEAR SLEEPYHEAD: First try getting to bed earlier. And earlier and earlier. Then set two alarm clocks on opposite sides of the room, and after you have shut them off, immediately bathe your face and hands (all the way up to your elbows) in cold water. Another suggestion. Don't let your husband and children depend on you to get them up. Insist that they get themselves up. After they have suffered the consequences of being late for work and school a few times, they'll cure themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Last Sunday, my husband and I drove over to visit his widowed mother. As we were leaving, my mother-in-law says to my husband, "Next time, come alone so we can talk." (And she didn't whisper it either.)

Abby, I always knew that my mother-in-law wasn't the smartest person in the world, but wouldn't you think she would have more brains than to say this in front of me?

On the way home I told my husband that from now on he can visit his mother alone all the time, and then they can "talk" as much as they want to.

Abby, I have bent over backwards to be a good daughter-in-law. Do you blame me for being burned up?

BURNED UP: DEAR BURNED: No, I suspect the poor dear isn't playing with a full deck.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Young Mother" there is no "right" time to tell her adopted child that he is adopted. The time is now!

My wife and I have an adopted son, now three and one-half, and he knows he is adopted and he will tell the world he is. And so will we. God knows we love him, and he knows we love him, and we don't care who knows he's adopted. We are proud of it.

We have three other children, born to us, and they know we love them, too. No more because they are "natural children" — and no less. That's what it's all about. L.O.V.E.

Sincerely,
BILL M., CINCINNATI

Steelworkers Set Demands; Turns To Personal Attacks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United Steelworkers President I. W. Abel has taken the wraps off major 1971 contract demands and left little doubt his 1.2 million-member union would strike if necessary to back them up.

Although a "substantial wage increase" will be a major issue in the bargaining, Abel said, priority goes to a cost-of-living escalator.

"We waived this in 1959 and as a result the membership has suffered ever since," he said.

Abel spoke Wednesday at a news conference where a 14-page list of union demands was unveiled.

Cost-of-living wage escalators usually provide for automatic wage hikes if government surveys indicate price increases.

Other demands disclosed by Abel include cutting the five-day, eight-hour work week to four days and improved pension-health benefits. The major demands were hammered out during a two-day session of the wage policy committee made up of 163 elected local union representatives.

Asked the mood of the steelworkers, Abel said: "The attitude and frame of mind of our wage policy committee these last two days indicate they would strike to gain the equity they feel they have lost these past three years."

"There is no question in my mind that my men will strike ... if necessary."

"However," he added, "we hope to avoid a strike."

But Abel said the union will not push to eliminate its present strike agreement with the industry while noting there was considerable pressure in some union quarters to have it stricken from the 1971 contract.

The clause stipulates complaints must be submitted and settled through grievance channels.

The last strike in the basic steel industry was a 116 day shutdown in 1959.

Abel declined to disclose just how much money the union would ask for in its bargaining with the can, aluminum, nonferrous and basic steel industries.

The union's first contract deadline is Feb. 15, for 46,000 workers in the can industry, where contract talks are under way.

Nelson Urges Environment Outlay Hike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said Wednesday the United States needs to spend $25-$30 billion per year more than it is now spending on environmental problems.

Bake Sale Planned In Harrisburg

Daughters of America of Harrisburg will hold a Bake Sale Saturday at the Town Hall of Harrisburg. The sale will begin 9 a.m.

Nelson spoke at the final session of a three-day Conference on the Quality of the Environment at Ohio State University.

He said environment is a political question and that other issues are irrelevant until environmental questions are answered.

"Man has always thought of himself as being superior to nature, and if he continues to feel this way, we can not do much about the problem of environment," Nelson said.

He listed nine areas where the federal government should adopt and adhere to environmental policies: research, air and water quality, land use, mass transportation, mineral resources, wilderness, pesticide use, oceans and waste disposal.

"We are looking at the beginning of a movement with this way, we can not do much great promise," he said.

The Circleville Herald, Thur. Nov. 19, 1970
Circleville, Ohio

Urge Sport ...

(Continued from Page 1) will need, Rhodes said, is "more work and maybe some more desire and determination."

Rhodes denied rumors he is still seriously considering a special legislative session to deal with political redistricting.

He said the state could not be remapped until final federal census figures were in and he did not expect those figures before the end of the year.

Rhodes said his administration for eight years typified "good management," "a balanced budget," "low taxes" and "low unemployment."

"And I don't care what you do," Rhodes said, "because if you don't have profits, you're not going to have jobs." The profit theme has been a prominent one throughout the Rhodes years.

He said those on welfare rolls were victims of the economic system, and that the welfare cycle will never be broken until there is employment. He described the current welfare system as "antiquated and obsolete."

The governor, long concerned with vocational training, said he was considering establishing a non-profit vocational research center in Ohio.

He also announced another book he has written on vocational education was due to be released next week.

Leahy First On Gilligan Tax Panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — David F. Leahy of Cleveland was re-elected president of the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants Wednesday and also became Gov.-elect John Gilligan's first appointee to a Citizens Task Force on Tax Reform.

Creation of the task force was announced by Gilligan in a luncheon address at the council's 48th annual meeting here.

He said the group will report to him in February on ways to revise the state tax structure on an equitable basis.

Following the speech, Gilligan told newsmen he envisioned the task force as a 30-member group representing all economic sectors.

Gilligan advocated in his campaign an income tax on corporations and possibly a personal income tax if more revenues were needed. But he said Wednesday he would study closely task force recommendations.

Other officers re-elected at the meeting included John L. Feudner of Akron, vice president, and Herbert E. Strawbridge of Cleveland, treasurer.

OU Rejects Union Letter

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University officials say they have rejected as part of a labor agreement a letter from the union representing non-academic employees interpreting an overtime provision.

Ward Wilson OU personnel director, said the letter is a unilateral interpretation of a clause, offering employees one-half hour of overtime daily.

The university, which has signed a new agreement with the union, sees the provision as granting employees who wish the right to work an additional half hour the right to do so.

The union interpretation is that the employees would be paid overtime for being on call during lunch. The disputed provision is contained in an agreement signed Monday, and calls for employees who wish togo overtime to sign up before the start of a quarter. Thus the dispute is not expected to be resolved until after the first of the year.

Wilson said the agreement includes a no-strike provision.

Blacks Demand $40,000 Payoff

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Claiming they "can't relate to the white university," members of the Black United Students (BUS) organization at Kent State University have demanded that $40,000 in student tuition fees be given to the black students.

BUS president Charles Eberhardt, who made the announcement Tuesday, said the BUS advisory board agreed the organization should get $41 for each of the school's 800 blacks plus about $7,200 for activities.

Dr. David A. Ambler, vice president for student affairs, who received the demand, said he was deferring the request to the Student Activities Budget Committee of the Student Affairs Council.

The university is committed "to the use of the proper channels for a full review and consideration of the request," he said, pointing out that the budget committee allocates student activity fees money.

Headgear Gains In Status With Fashion's 'Long Look'

NEW YORK (AP) — Hats languished in the shadow of the miniskirt for years, but the long look has given head gear a new status.

Retailers report that fashion hat sales, particularly in wide-brimmed styles like the gaucho, have increased this fall. Women are buying them to wear with longer skirts or pants suits. Fur hat sales are down, and in some areas, customers are doing more talking than buying, but retailers are generally optimistic.

"The short skirt, at its height, made the hat look ridiculous. With skirts a little below the knee, the hat creates a balance," said Charles Rothenberg, chairman of the Millinery Institute of America, a cooperative of hat manufacturers, unions and designers.

"For the past six or eight years, the hat receded in importance. The decline was not great, but it was constant," he says, partly attributing the decline to "too many jazzy, dressy hats."

However gone are yesterday's ornate hats with flowers, gimps, curliques, fake fruits, frosting and weird shapes—the ones that prompted all those "What is it?" jokes. Also gone is the tough, militant chic of the 60s.

Today, the soft, tailored look has taken over. Big brims in Spanish sailors, gauchos, "weeping cavaliers, swagger shapes, padres and bretons help carry the longer silhouette. Crushable, slouchy velours, snap brim felts, cloches, knitted caps and suedes are also good for a casual look.

This year, more designers than ever used hats to accent their fall collections. By July, hat manufacturers were handling bigger bookings than they had seen in 10 years, said Rothenberg. Orders were up as much as 20 per cent.

In spite of interest in the fashion hats, few buyers are raving about over-all sales.

The big problem for many is sluggish fur hat sales. Retailers blame their troubles on late warm weather, confusion over the fashion picture or economic conditions.

94 Million Workers Covered By Social Security

Social security contributions now finance retirement, survivors, disability, and health insurance protection for almost 94 million workers and their families reports Harry B. Bieber, social security district manager in Chillicothe. This is 59 million more workers than were covered when the program began.

Currently, a worker's contribution is 4.8 per cent of the first $7800 of his annual earnings. An equal amount is paid by his employer. For example, if weekly pay is $80, the contribution will be $3.84 of that amount from the worker and an equal contribution from his employer. At $100, it will be $4.80.

For the worker who works steadily for one employer and earns more than $150 a week, social security contributions stop sometime during the year — after he has been paid wages of $7800.

Social Security contributions are divided up and credited directly into three trust funds.

The money in these trust funds can be used only to pay benefits and the cost of administering the social security program.

The largest share goes to the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund. Of each $1 in social security contributions, this fund receives 76 cents and from it, payments are made to retired men and women, to widows and widowers, to widowed mothers, and to dependent children.

About 12 1/2 cents out of each $1 in contributions goes to the Hospital Insurance Trust Fund to finance hospital insurance under the Medicare program.

The Disability Insurance Trust Fund gets 11 1/2 cents from each $1 of social security contributions for payments to disabled workers and their dependents.

The Chillicothe Social Security Office is located at 606 Central Center. Their phone number is 775-4950 (614). The office is open from 8:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday, holidays excepted.

Scaling Of El Capitan Successful

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — The Heroes of El Capitan celebrated their 27-day climb up the sheer side of the 3,000-foot granite monolith and began casting glances today at new peaks to conquer.

Warren Harding and Dean Caldwell sipped champagne and munched fried chicken—their first hot food since Oct. 23—and declared their first ascent of El Capitan's "Wall of the Morning Light" would be their last.

"I feel great," said Harding, 46, of West Sacramento, Calif., as he arrived on the El Capitan crest just before noon Wednesday, smiling broadly through a heavy black and grey beard.

Caldwell, 27, of Portland, Ore., commented, "I don't think I want to do the same one again. But I'll do others like it."

The climbers said they hoped to form an expedition next June to attempt a new ascent route on a 20,000-foot ice peak in the Peruvian Andes called Jirishanca. Then they want to try the unclimbed rock wall along the Angel Falls in Venezuela.

Their first reaction on reaching El Capitan's summit was astonishment at the size of the welcoming crowd, about 75 fellow climbers and news reporters who got to the top the easy way—by a trail on the opposite side.

"God, I don't believe it!" said Caldwell as he arrived on top first at 11:34 a.m. Wednesday. He turned away and calmly resumed the chore of hauling up the 400 pounds of gear the men had carried 3,000 vertical feet and bringing up Harding on the climbing rope at 11:53 a.m. Then their girl friends rushed to the men and hugged and kissed them.

The spot was less than 200 feet from where Harding emerged on the first ascent of the face of El Capitan by an easier route 12 years ago this month.

The reunion of the climbers and the girls began a celebration that lasted into the night and delayed their return to the flat rock-bound valley until well after dark.

Also on top was a five-man standby team of crack valley climbers left over from an aborted rescue attempt, called off last Friday when Caldwell shouted to the ground that "like hell" would he leave the rock except under his own power.

Both men agreed on the worst part of the climb: the rainstorm that soaked them into their hammock-like tents suspended from the sheer wall for nearly a week.

The climbers closed strong despite a shortage of food. They had been on the barest emergency rations for almost a week and ate the last—half a can of sardines—on Tuesday.

Both men took falls during the climb but were saved by their ropes. Caldwell escaped injury but Harding suffered scrapes and bruises.

Harding and Caldwell had hoped to reach the summit late Tuesday, but ran into more difficult climbing than expected on the overhanging rock near the top.

They slept 40 feet from the crest Tuesday night while news men and fellow climbers turned the vast El Capitan summit into a campground.

The Children's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Pickaway County Public Library has a section devoted to books for children. Volumes recently added to the Children's Library are reviewed here.

This is National Children's Book Week, and it is hoped that parents will make a special effort to visit the library with their children.

Boys and girls of Pickaway County have responded well to the contest to find a name for the Library's Children's Department. Over six hundred names were submitted before the contest closed last Sunday. Judges are now busy at the difficult task of selecting a winner. Results will be announced on Saturday, November 21.

John Langstaff has achieved success in several fields, all branching from his career as a vocal soloist with major orchestras and choruses. He is recognized as a music teacher on television both here and abroad; and he has written children's books. His first venture into this area of publishing was a collaboration with Feodor Rojankovsky with "Frog Went A-Courting" — they won the Caldecott prize in 1956.

"Hi! Ho! The Rattlin' Bog" is his newest book for children. It is a delightful collection of songs for group singing, with piano and guitar accompaniment. All are catchy tunes, guaranteed to bring joy to music lovers. Designed primarily for children, this volume will appeal to everyone.

Other excellent song books for children include "Sing Mother Goose" by Opal Wheeler, long recognized as an authority in children's music; "Wake Up and Sing" by Beatrice Landek and Elizabeth Crook, for young children and with teaching suggestions; "The Complete Nursery Song Book" by Inez Bertail and humorously illustrated by Walt Kelly, the cartoonist; and "The Cat in the Hat Song Book" by Dr. Seuss, which is just what one might expect from this writer — entertaining from front to back.

Older but still good are "The Laura Ingalls Wilder Songbook" by Eugenia Garson, charmingly illustrated by Garth Williams, "American Folk Songs for Christmas" and "American Folk Songs for Children" by Ruth Seeger, and "Music Time" by Evelyn Hunt.

"An Introduction to the Instruments of the Orchestra" by Jane Bunche is a good basic book which includes some history, some theory, and pictures and descriptions of musical instruments. Covering much of the same information is "Music Makers" by Bruno Frost.

Radcliffe Named Trustee Of Forest Cemetery

The Board of Trustees of The Forest Cemetery Assn. today announced the appointment of Clarence Radcliffe, 308 Northridge Road, a trustee of the association.

Radcliffe replaces Mr. R. L. Brehmer Sr., who recently retired from the Board. The newly appointed trustee will serve as a member of the Grounds Committee.

Other members of the Board of Trustees are Durward D. Dowden, Harry W. Heffner, Robert S. Elsea, George D. Young, Howard N. Stevenson and Charles Pugsley.

One out of every six Americans — approximately 31.5 million people — play a musical instrument regularly, according to the American Music Conference.

Yugoslav Quits Position

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Nikola Miljanic has resigned as vice premier of Yugoslavia. No reason was disclosed.

Premier Mitja Ribicic said Wednesday the resignation was a blow because Miljanic was one of those involved in the government's developing economic stability program for 1971.

The announcement said Miljanic would continue in parliament as a deputy from his native Croatia.

Relief For East Pakistan
Flows; Government Rapped

Dacca, East Pakistan (AP) — Swiss and German aircraft ferried in tons of relief supplies today and President Nixon allocated $10 million to the international rehabilitation effort for survivors of the cyclone and tidal waves that inundated a large area of East Pakistan six days ago. But there were complaints from Pakistanis that their government wasn't doing enough.

The number of dead remained incalculable. The government confirmed 55,000, but unofficial estimates were from 300,000 to 500,000; the Pakistani relief commissioner, A. M. Anisuzzaman, said he could neither challenge nor confirm them.

Dozens of small islands in the Bay of Bengal were still untouched by relief workers. Survivors told newsmen their drinking water came from pools befouled by corpses of human beings and cattle and their only food was rotting rice kernels they burned before eating to kill the stench.

Officials discounted reports of widespread cholera in the stricken area.

"The incidence of cholera is insignificant compared to other problems of relief here," said Dr. Wiley H. Mosley, chief of epidemiology of the cholera laboratory run by Pakistan and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Planes were on their way from the United States, Britain, France, Iran and other countries.

Communist China said it was donating more than $900,000 worth of rice, other food, blankets and medicine, and nearly $475,000 in cash.

But despite President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan's pledge to "give all help and relief to victims," the only Pakistani aircraft participating in relief work on Tuesday was a helicopter that Anisuzzaman said had to be grounded for maintenance after 14 hours aloft. Two small planes with less than two tons' cargo capacity were scheduled to start dropping supplies today. The relief chief said the air force offered two C130s but they were considered too fast for low-flying airdrops.

Relief officials conceded the effort was far short of what was needed. One said dealing with the army for such equipment as helicopters is "a delicate question."

Threshers Plan Show

LONDON, Ohio (AP) — The Miami Valley Steam Threshers Association has announced it will hold its annual show next summer at the Madison County Fairgrounds rather than in Urbana, Champaign County, where it has been held for several years. The event will be held July 15-18.

It was scheduled to start dropping supplies today. The relief chief said the air force offered two C130s but they were considered too fast for low-flying airdrops.

Relief officials conceded the effort was far short of what was needed. One said dealing with the army for such equipment as helicopters is "a delicate question."

Find Most Young Americans Naive On Political Process

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A national survey has found that most young Americans recognize social problems but have limited knowledge of political processes and racial injustice.

Results of year-long tests and interviews of about 90,000 young persons were made public Tuesday by the Education Commission of the States, an organization chaired by Gov. Russell W. Peterson of Delaware.

"Most adults and older students show awareness of the more urgent problems which society faces," the report said, "and some of the ways it has attempted to alleviate them."

Although less than half of the 9-year-olds recognize the need for opposed viewpoints, it added, most 17-year-olds and adults do so and are rational and critical about civic issues.

The project is a continuing program that will last at least 10 more years. It was set up in 1964 with funds from the Carnegie Corporation and has received later financing from the Ford Foundation and the U.S. Office of Education. The purpose is to find out what the nation is getting in return for educational outlays.

Dr. Edgar J. Epps, of the University of Chicago's education department, expressed disappointment in some findings of the citizenship survey a reaction echoed by many of the 150 governors and educators attending the commission's three-day meeting which ends Wednesday. In addition to Peterson, governors on the commission are Harold LeVander of Minnesota, Tom McCall of Oregon and Calvin Rampton of Utah.

"I was shocked that only 41 per cent of the 13-year-olds could cite a case of racial discrimination and an even smaller percentage could cite a case of religious discrimination in this country," Epps said.

"It just reinforces the feeling of minorities," Epps said, "that they are going to have to do it themselves because nobody is going to do it for them."

Another area of concern, he added, is the limited knowledge of the political processes shown by young people in all of the age groups.

Only 58 per cent of the young adults 26 to 35 could name even one senator from their state. The figure fell to 30 per cent for the 17-year-olds and 16 for the 13-year-olds.

Of the young adults, 60 per cent said they read books regularly, compared with 95 percent who read newspapers and 78 per cent who read magazines.

Kennedy And Byrd Play Cat, Mouse For Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy and Robert C. Byrd are spending a lot of time on the Senate floor in a cat-and-mouse game involving the chamber's No. 2 Democratic leadership post.

Byrd from West Virginia is an undeclared contender for the Democratic whip post now held by Kennedy.

At the moment, the Massachusetts senator is confident he can keep the post that makes him heir apparent to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield.

Byrd, a master of cloakroom politics, now holds his party's No. 3 leadership post and is said to feel he did much of the routine Senate work during the last two years while Kennedy was tied up in a re-election battle and the aftermath of the Chapquiddick incident.

A successful Byrd challenge would give the whip post to a senator who voted with Southerners on civil rights legislation and perhaps would also kill Kennedy's hopes for national leadership.

As a result, Kennedy has been on the Senate floor as much as Byrd since Congress reconvened Monday.

Byrd said in an interview he has made no decision to challenge Kennedy.

"It is too early," he said.

"I'm putting the work of this session first."

As to the evident maneuvering with Kennedy to do favors that endear one to fellow senators Byrd said, "I'm just doing what I have been doing all along."

When Kennedy was asked about a possible contest, he said, "I will run; I intend to win."

In 1969, he received support from 31 of the 57 Democratic senators, and an aide indicated he expects backing now from at least that many, if not a few more.

Armco Slates Mining Expansion

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — The Armco Steel Corp. announced today the start of a development program which it said eventually will give it a coal mining capacity of 3.7 million tons annually.

W. B. Browning Jr. vice president for mining and material resources, said Armco currently produces about 2.2 million tons of high volatile (metallurgical) coal annually from its mines at Robin Hood and Montcoal, W. Va. The company estimates it has approximately 180 million tons of coal of prime reserve in this area of West Virginia.

First phase of the program will be the opening of another mine in southern West Virginia. The new mine is scheduled to produce 500,000 tons of metallurgical quality coal annually beginning in the first quarter of 1972.

Gilligan Sets Tax Panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov.-Elect John J. Gilligan, in a speech prepared for delivery before the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants Wednesday afternoon, announced creation of a Citizens Task Force on Tax Reform.

He said it would recommend ways of revising the state's tax structure "in an equitable and just fashion based on the ability of each individual to pay."

The task force, Gilligan said, would be the first in a series of such groups to help form programs in all the vital areas in which state government is involved.

"I intend to seek in the area of taxes and in every other area of concern, the broadest possible base for a consensus," Gilligan said. "I intend, in short, to ask the people of Ohio to help determine their own destiny."

"I believe that here in Ohio we have enough people with talent and brains and energy and dedication to find the answer to any problem facing us. Our responsibility is to get those people involved in the system."

House Gets Job Safety Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors of a landmark safety bill passed by the Senate say the measure will become law in spite of a Republican threat to weaken it in the House.

The bill was sent to the House after the Senate's 82-3 passage Tuesday. House committee action is complete and final action is expected before the end of the current rump session.

The bill establishes the first national program in history designed to improve health and safety conditions for 80 million American workers.

The legislation is tied to reducing the 14,500 deaths, 2.2 million injuries and $1.5 billion in lost wages which occur annually in industry.

The Senate measure directs the secretary of labor to draw up within two years standards covering hazards that may cause death, injury and occupational diseases which shorten lives.

Labor Department inspectors then would determine where violations are taking place.

An employer could appeal violation citations to a three-member commission named by the president.

The commission proceedings could be appealed to the federal courts.

Key Plant Approves GM Pact

DETROIT (AP) — One major hurdle to a return to production by General Motors Corp.—a contract agreement at a key body stamping plant—has been cleared. But the chances of getting the wheels moving again by Dec. 1 appear slim.

A highly placed GM source conceded this and said full production may be as far away as Dec. 15 or later.

GM has been closed by a nationwide strike which has idled 394,000 workers for nine weeks.

A new national contract, which eventually would raise the average production workers' annual wage to between $12,000 and $13,000 has been agreed upon and is being submitted to ratification. Through Tuesday, all 25 union locals that had voted on the pact had expressed overwhelming approval.

But all 155 GM-UAW bargaining units were authorized to continue striking until they have new local agreements to supplement the national contract, and 57 plants are still without such settlements.

GM lists 54 key plants as vital to a resumption of full operations, but sources say there are two facilities which are essential to starting up in any volume.

One, a Fisher Body Division plant at Willow Springs, Ill., near Chicago, reached tentative settlement late Tuesday.

The second, a Fisher plant in Mansfield, Ohio, is still without an agreement. Both plants produce body stampings for all GM automotive divisions.

Graham Fears War To Come

LONDON (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham told British industrialists, lawmakers and clergy today that the world is building up to "the greatest war in history."

Graham said at a breakfast meeting in a West End hotel: "Unless there is a religious revival in the next 10 years, freedom will not survive."

"The United States is heading straight into the arms of a dictatorship unless the revival expands."

He said that "watered-down Christianity" will not bring today's youth to God. The answer he gave was to tell youth of the Biblical promises of hell, heaven and judgment.

Park Board Supervises Four Recreation Areas

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the twelfth of a series of articles focusing on the work of each department and board which are necessary in the government of Circleville. In this section, duties of the city's Park Commission are reviewed.

By MICHELE HULSE
Herald Staff Writer

Circleville has four parks. There are three small neighborhood playground areas in addition to the primary one, Ted Lewis Park.

Many residents have the wrong impression that all the upkeep of the Ted Lewis Park is provided for by the famed entertainer for the citizens of his hometown. Actually city funds provide the bulk of this. The remainder, and a very minute part, comes from donations from Mr. Lewis and civic groups or other agencies.

An estimated 7 or 8 acres are occupied by city park areas. This includes the large recreation areas, a small acreage in Garden City, the Smith Memorial park on Maplewood Ave. and Southend Playground on Washington St. All except the last are on city owned property. Southend Playground was acquired through a lease from Eshelman's and now through the courtesy of Clarence Happeny who now owns the property.

Decisions on upkeep, employment of groundskeepers, and shelterhouse reservations fall onto the shoulders of three men. These men — Harold Anderson, Jack McGuire and Richard B. Davis — are appointed to serve three year terms with no compensation. Their appointments are made through the mayor's office.

WHAT do they do? With their limited budget, they provide for the care of all four city parks. Anderson serves as chairman of the committee. He has assumed the task of handling all reservations for the areas' use.

During 1970 the park made 69 reservations. These are only accepted during the mornings and afternoons during the week and on Sundays. These 69 reservations accounted for some 4,000 people, but probably two or three times that many persons use the park facilities at Ted Lewis. These are persons who used the shelterhouses, for family or social gatherings in the evenings.

Overseeing the work of the three employees falls upon the shoulders of Jack McGuire. There is really little checking to do since the men enjoy their jobs so much. Nolan Sims, Les Rihl and Ray Goodman handle all park duties. All are retired and see this work as helpful and healthful. Their salaries are paid from a special fund — their income divided over the months from Easter to Pumpkin Show.

Davis serves as Commission secretary taking care of correspondence and keeping records of the meeting in addition to administrative duties. There are no set meetings. The trio settle most of their problems in separate talks among themselves since their business and home lives make them most available this way. These men authorize that some $3,500 annually is spent in upkeep and improvement of park facilities. These include installation of some 150 more parking posts this year, completing a program begun by the board almost five years ago. Three new tot swings were installed this summer, donations from the Police Auxiliary.

PARK PLANNING — Mapping out plans for future projects for the four city parks are Park Commission chairman Harold Anderson and member Jack McGuire. These two men and Richard B. Davis, all three private citizens, donate their time to this position for the city. Their interests involve upkeep and repair of park facilities, which are handled by three employees hired by the board, and future programs.

Rebuilding the dugouts at the large ball diamond was a major project this year. Included in this was removal of the electric scoreboard from the outfield to the bleacher area where they can be used.

STRICTLY a Little League project was the purchase of new lights for the big diamond this year. The Park Commission provided for their installation and took some of the old lights to illuminate the little diamond in another section of the park.

On the program for 1971 is a regrading of the outfield area shared by the two diamonds. Commissioners plan to fill, regrade and reseed the area, probably in the fall after the baseball season is over.

For years, the men have been asking for a traffic light to be installed on Court St. at the entrance to Ted Lewis Park but have met with no success. There is a serious access problem during busy hours.

Shelterhouse number one will receive a new floor, probably next spring. Cement on the present floor has been cracking badly and is in need of repair. This should fairly well deplete funds allotted by council for the parks.

Commissioners have access to a special fund. This carries over from year to year and is not reallocated by city council annually. Money in this fund comes from donations, and private contributions from people who reserve facilities in the main park (this is a service the commission cannot charge for). In 1970, over $500 was accepted for this fund. This is where Ted Lewis's gifts to the park are placed for purchase of a piece of playground equipment or some other new addition to the park areas.

Arkansas State Still Leads Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — The top four college division football teams—with Arkansas State heading the list—retained their positions in The Associated Press poll but there was plenty of action behind the leaders.

Arkansas State's Indians, with a perfect 9-0 record, garnered seven of the 15 first-place votes by the nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters and amassed 236 points in the balloting announced Wednesday.

Running up Montana, 10-0, received four first-place votes and 227 points and North Dakota

State, 8-0-1, collected 185 points although receiving no first-place nominations.

Holding onto fourth was Tampa, 9-0, with 154 points while Tennessee State, 8-0, moved up one spot to fifth with 136.

Wofford leaped from ninth to sixth place, followed by four newcomers to the Top Ten—Texas A&I, Eastern Kentucky, Abilene Christian and Wittenberg.

Tampa, Wofford, Texas A & I and Eastern Kentucky each received one first-place vote. Dropping out of the Top Ten were Southwest Louisiana, falling into a tie with St. Olaf, for 11th; Western Kentucky, down to 13th; Delaware, tied with Westminster, Pa., for No. 16, and Southern Illinois, which fell completely out of the Top 20.

The remaining teams in the Top 20 were No. 14 Eastern Michigan; No. 15 Jacksonville, Ala.; State; No. 18 Grambling; No. 19 Alcorn A&M, and No. 20 Edinboro, Pa.

Area Cagers Open Season

All three county schools have been hard at work in preparation for the opening of the 1970-71 basketball season this weekend which will find Teays Valley at Columbus North of Friday and Saturday's slate has The Plains at Logan Elm and Millersport at Westfall.

Viking Coach Bob Hoover has five lettermen back from last year to form the nucleus for this season's cage squad.

Returning letter winners are John Glick, 6'3" senior forward; Jeff Helsler, 6'2" senior forward; Champ Henson, 6'4" senior center; Bob Tucker, 6'0" senior guard and Don Neff, 6'4 1/2" senior center.

Other members of the Teays Valley squad are Don Makarius, 5'10" senior guard; Jack Brinker, 6'2" junior forward; Steve Bumgarner, 5'7" junior guard; David Dean, 5'11" junior forward; Joe Lombardo, 5'9" junior guard; Randy Nungester, 5'11" junior forward and Jeff Sheets, 6'1" junior forward.

"WE will have fairly good size," Coach Hoover stated, "and should be able to give a good account of ourselves on the boards."

"Size is going to be a big factor in the league this year," Hoover continued, "as West Jefferson has a big club coming back and they tell us that Olentangy has three boys over 6'6" in its starting lineup."

The Vikings will utilize a patterned offense with fair outside shooting. They will be a hard driving club and should be tough to contain at this portion of the game.

The Vikings will use a man to man defense and apply pressure all over the court.

"North is a good big team with fine shooting ability," Coach Hoover commented, "and have a good ball player in this Harris boy who is only a sophomore."

"Our first four games will be rough. We meet North, Miami Trace, West Jefferson and Grove City in a row," Hoover said.

The probably opening lineup for the Vikings will be Sheets and Helsler at the forwards, Neff at the center post and Tucker and Bumgarner will bring the ball down the floor.

NEW Westfall coach, Jeff Bigam, has one returning letterman from last year's squad but has some good help moving into the picture on his 13-man squad.

Back from last season's varsity is Randy Alkire, 6'1" senior, who was a solid member of last year's squad and a fine outside shooter.

The two other seniors on the team are Larry Kempton, 6'2", and Jerry Williams, 5'11". Williams is a newcomer to the squad and Kempton saw quite a bit of action last year.

The rest of the team consists of juniors Doug McKay, 5'9"; John Valone, 6'0"; Bruce Beatty, 5'10"; Mark Schein, 6'0"; Scott Riddle, 6'0"; Tim Neff, 5'6"; Joe Clem, 5'10"; Mike Puckett, 6'1"; Larry Harris, 6'1"; and Tom Cook, 5'10".

Westfall will be somewhat lacking in size and will play a patterned offense, concentrating on getting the good shots. Alkire and Bruce Beatty are fine outside shooters and should provide some scoring punch to the Mustang offense.

"Defense will be our strong point," Coach Bigam contended, "and we have the players to do a good job with a pressing man to man defense."

"WE have good hustle and attitude on the team," Bigam said, "and I am optimistic about the coming season."

"The Scioto Valley Conference appears to have good balance with Zane Trace the team to beat," he continued.

The probably starting lineup for the Mustangs Saturday night will be Alkire, Kempton, Williams, Valone and Beatty.

Logan Elm opens the season against The Plains of Mt. Sterling Saturday in the LEHS gymnasium.

Coach Chuck Pritchard will floor a team with the experience coming from senior center Mark Knece, a big 6-foot-2 cager and Chuck Sims, a 5-foot-9 guard.

Knece was a varsity starter last year while Sims gave the squad good bench strength, especially later in the season.

PRITCHARD has moved two sophomores up to the varsity this year, both of whom will see a lot of action. They are Tim Justice, 5-foot-11 and Tom Sykes, 5-foot-9. Both are real fine shooters and will see most of their play at guard along with Sims.

Rick Blankenship, a transfer student from Circleville High School, will fill one of the forward spots. Blankenship is 5-foot-11, a good shooter with good moves and speed and can get on the boards.

Alex Jones, a 6'2" junior and Jeff Young, a 5'11" junior are contenders for the other forward position. Young, who rebounds well for his size and has a fine shooting touch with the ball, has been hampered with a bad knee in early scrimmage sessions.

The strength of the LE cage squad could well be in its bench this year. Gary Benner, 6'0"; Doug Barnett, 6'2"; Steve Fischer, 6'0"; and Steve Jones, 5'11, all juniors, have better than average shooting ability.

In a scrimmage session Tuesday with Amanda the Braves played well. Because of their inexperience, Pritchard believes he has the kind of a squad that will improve as the season progresses.

Pritchard, as do most of the coaches in the Scioto Valley Conference, feel that Zane Trace will be the team to beat. But nobody is counting the Braves out of the conference race.

Other teams in the league are Laurelville, Unioto, Adena, Piketon, Paint Valley and Westfall.

NBA Board OKs $700,000 In Payoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Players could make more than $16,000 apiece for winning a National Basketball Association title this year—almost double last season's figure.

The NBA's board of governors Wednesday approved a $700,000 playoff pool. Last year, it was $400,000.

The New York Knicks, enroute to their first world title last year, scooped $118,000 out of the kitty, or a little more than $9,000 a man.

If a team winds up with the best winning percentage, as the Knicks did, and goes on to take the title, then it will collect $212,000.

A team with the best overall winning percentage will get $20,000, plus $30,000 for having the best percentage in its two-division conference.

Winning teams in the first round of the playoffs will get $32,000, survivors of the semifinal playoffs will collect another $40,000 and the winners of the championship series will get $90,000.

The board of governors also set up the following playoff pairings for 1971:

First round, Eastern Conference, first place team Atlanta Division, vs. runner-up Central Division and first place team Central vs. runner-up Eastern, both best-of-7 series.

First round, Western Conference, first place team Midwest Division vs. runner-up Pacific Division and first place team Pacific vs. runner-up Midwest, both best-of-7.

Second round, Eastern Conference, first round winners meet in best-of-7 series.

Second round, Western Conference, first round winners meet in best-of-7 series.

Championship round, conference winners meet in best-of-7 series.

Football Probers Eye Player Relations

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Bernie Parrish, former defensive back with the Cleveland Browns, was to resume his testimony today before a special federal grand jury probing for possible antitrust violations in operations of the National Football League.

Parrish, who is director of Teamsters Union health and medical program in St. Louis, was called before the jury Wednesday afternoon following testimony by Ross Fichtner, another former Browns defensive back.

The jury recessed for the day after questioning Parrish for an hour and 45 minutes and instructed him to return at 10 a.m. today.

Parrish, 34, told newsmen he could not comment on questions put to him by the jury until he had completed his testimony.

"I was puzzled when I received the subpoena because I didn't know what it was all about, but now that I am here and have given some testimony, I'm glad to be of any help I can to the investigation," he said.

Fichtner, now a manufacturer's representative in Meadville, Pa., said some of the questions the jury asked him dealt with player-management relations and relations among players in the NFL.

He said the question of blackballing players came up, "but I wasn't able to give them much information."

Newsmen were unable to pin down as to whether he thought he had been blackballed.

"I think I got a raw deal but whether or not you call it blackballing I don't know," he said.

Parrish was with the Browns from 1959 until after the first game of the 1966 season, when he asked for his release. He finished the season with the Houston Oilers and then retired from football.

He decided to say why he asked for his release from the Browns. While with the club he helped organize the NFL Players' Association.

Fichtner, 32, said the Browns did not renew his contract after the 1967 season following a squabble over a celebrity golf tournament in which he had charge of inviting players. He was with the New Orleans Saints in 1968, but saw limited action, and was dropped before the 1969 season began.

The jury reportedly is looking for possible violations of the Sherman Act in the restraint of players' services and restraint of trade in the merger of the National and American Football Leagues. Such violations could bring criminal indictments.

Fichtner said the golf tournament incident "came at an inopportune time when there was a lot of publicity about race relations."

Teammate John Wooten, an offensive guard, also was dropped after he charged that Fichtner had not invited Negro players to participate in the celebrity tournament. He went with the Washington Redskins as a free agent after no other NFL club claimed him, but now is out of football.

Fichtner told newsmen that he was accused of bigotry as a result of the golf tournament squabble but was vindicated.

He said the jury asked him about several players, including former teammate Walter Beach, who has claimed he was blackballed, but said Beach's name was not mentioned specifically with any complaint.

Beach, a student at Yale Law School, also is expected to appear before the grand jury.

Tom Fears, who was Fichtner's coach at New Orleans, was one of the first witnesses before the grand jury. He was fired by the Saints about two weeks ago. Representatives of the Browns' front office and coaching staff also have testified.

The investigation is being conducted under strict secrecy by the Cleveland office of the U.S. Justice Department's Antitrust Division. Carl Steinhouse, district director of the division, has declined to say how many witnesses were subpoenaed, but said the probe will take at least a month. The 23-member jury was impaneled Monday.

NBA Board OKs $700,000 In Payoffs

NEW YORK (AP) — Players could make more than $16,000 apiece for winning a National Basketball Association title this year—almost double last season's figure.

The NBA's board of governors Wednesday approved a $700,000 playoff pool. Last year, it was $400,000.

The New York Knicks, enroute to their first world title last year, scooped $118,000 out of the kitty, or a little more than $9,000 a man.

If a team winds up with the best winning percentage, as the Knicks did, and goes on to take the title, then it will collect $212,000.

A team with the best overall winning percentage will get $20,000, plus $30,000 for having the best percentage in its two-division conference.

Winning teams in the first round of the playoffs will get $32,000, survivors of the semifinal playoffs will collect another $40,000 and the winners of the championship series will get $90,000.

The board of governors also set up the following playoff pairings for 1971:

First round, Eastern Conference, first place team Atlanta Division, vs. runner-up Central Division and first place team Central vs. runner-up Eastern, both best-of-7 series.

First round, Western Conference, first place team Midwest Division vs. runner-up Pacific Division and first place team Pacific vs. runner-up Midwest, both best-of-7.

Second round, Eastern Conference, first round winners meet in best-of-7 series.

Second round, Western Conference, first round winners meet in best-of-7 series.

Championship round, conference winners meet in best-of-7 series.

Frazier Wipes Out Foster; Muhammad Ali Up Next?

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Frazier is a deadly puncher like such great heavyweights as Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano but until he beats Muhammad Ali he will be a pretender rather than a king to boxing fans.

Frazier put his skills on display Wednesday night and was impressive as he knocked out light heavyweight champion Bob Foster in two rounds in his first title defense since he knocked out Jimmy Ellis last February.

But lacking was the daily increase in tension and the howling mob that usually makes attendance at a heavyweight championship fight a memorable experience.

Never did the fight excite the sporting public as did a fight like Marciano-Jersey Joe Walcott or Ali's return to the ring against Jerry Quarry.

And a crowd of only 6,300 — second to the Ali-Sonny Liston fight in Lewiston, Maine in 1965 as the smallest heavyweight title turnout in modern history—showed up at 12,500-seat Cobo Arena for the feature half of the closed-circuit television doubleheader. Unbeaten heavyweight George Foreman stopped Boone Kirkman in two rounds in the opener in New York's Madison Square Garden.

But the Frazier victory cleared another block to a fight that has surpassed the boundaries of the sports world in catching the fancy of people—a fight with Ali.

When asked if he considered the Foster fight a tune-up for Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, Foster said:

"I was ready for Foster as I would have been for Ma-Ma (a reference to Ali)."

"I'm not talking about any fights for about three weeks," said Frazier's manager, Yank Durham, who then mentioned New York, Houston and Philadelphia as possible sites for a Frazier-Ali fight which could be in February.

"We will get together and talk," said Durham who added,

Kentucky Colonels Widen Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky opened a 1 1/2 game edge in the East and Indiana closed the gap to 1 in the West as the divisional battles continued Wednesday night in the American Basketball Association.

The Colonels got a bit of breathing room in the fight to stay ahead of Virginia as they whipped Carolina 122-112 while the second-place Squires were ripped 127-115 by the Floridians.

And Indiana moved even closer to the idle front-running Utah Stars in the West as the Pacers clipped Denver 119-114.

In Wednesday night's only other ABA game—the first half of a twinbill in Jacksonville, Fla.—the Memphis Pros nipped Pittsburgh 114-111.

Dan Issel and Cincy Powell led the Kentucky attack with 28 points apiece. Carolina, with Joe Caldwell hitting 30 points to take scoring honors, led throughout most of the first half but the Colonels caught the Cougars in the second half and never looked back.

The Floridians got a 35-point burst from Larry Jones and easily held off a Virginia rally to win. The Squires rallied by 23 points in the third period before starting their futile climb back, led by Neal Johnson, who hit 12 of his 15 game points in the final quarter.

Pair Involved In Tragedy, Now Murder

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Eight years ago Jack Harshberger and Frederick Binkowski were convicted of shooting with intent to kill a paraplegic school teacher who tried to arrange his own death.

Today Binkowski, 30, is held on a first-degree murder charge in the slaying of the 29-year-old Harshberger Monday night, one day after Mrs. Binkowski had accused Harshberger of rape. Binkowski and Harshberger were sentenced to the state penitentiary in 1962 for the shooting of Jack Flager, a Dearborn, Mich., paraplegic school teacher, who admitted hiring the two to kill him. Flager later was acquitted of a charge of aiding and abetting an attempt on his own life.

A detective said he telephoned Harshberger after he had been charged with rape, and Harshberger agreed to come to the police station.

Instead, Harshberger went to the Binkowski home where the shooting took place.

Police said Harshberger was shot five times in the arms and body with a .22-caliber pistol as he fled the Binkowski home. Mrs. Binkowski suffered a minor gunshot wound to the left arm. She was treated at a hospital and released.

A three-judge panel ruled in the Flager case that there was no Ohio law against a man plotting with others to take his own life.

Three years after that unsuccessful attempt on Flager's life he was found shot to death near Brea, Calif.

California police said at the time it appeared he had successfully arranged his own slaying.

Binkowski served about five years on his conviction and received his final release from parole custody April 10, 1969.

Harshberger deceived his parole last March 12 and was still under parole supervision.

Hold Author In Slaying Of Soldier

HUMBOLDT, Tenn. (AP) — Novelist Jesse Hill Ford has been charged with homicide in the shooting death of a 21-year-old soldier.

He was released on $20,000 bond Tuesday and his lawyers entered a request for police protection for him.

Ford is the author of "The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones," which was made into the movie "Liberation of L. B. Jones."

Ford's novels, based on the South and dealing heavily with racial interplay frequently have alienated both blacks and whites.

He told reporters he fired the rifle shot that killed George Henry Doaks, a Negro, out of fear for the safety of his family. Relatives of the dead youth said he was home on leave from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Ford, who is white, said his home recently had been the target of prowlers and the family had received obscene telephone calls, especially since the movie.

Urge Coordinated Child And Youth Service Panel

By DAVID TOMLIN

Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio delegates to a White House conference on children next month will propose that states set up commissions to coordinate child and youth services.

Ohio's 85 representatives at the conference will also submit resolutions calling for improved education, better financing for schools and committees to link school system to needs of their communities.

A national conference on children and youth has been held in about 1910, when Congress passed a law requiring the gatherings. There will be two conferences for the 1970s—one for children Dec. 13-18 and a second for youth next spring.

Each state sends a delegation composed of an assigned number of youths and adults, plus one additional delegate for each of the state's congressmen.

The delegates will spend six days in Washington discussing education, health, family life, community affairs and other subjects which concern children.

Purpose of the conference is to recommend national and state policies on children and youth.

Activities of the Ohio delegation are being coordinated by a 45-member executive committee, under the auspices of the Ohio Welfare Department.

The committee is responsible for selection of delegates and suggesting proposals or their approval in pre-conference meetings.

In a gathering last month, delegates approved a proposal for state child and youth commissions. The commissions would coordinate health, education, welfare, corrections and other government child services.

The delegation also proposed steps to improve state education financing across the country, including tax revision, if necessary.

Ohio representatives to the White House conference will recommend that committees be established in every state to monitor the quality of education and a coordinate education with community job needs.

The delegation will meet again in Columbus Nov. 30 before heading east for the conference.
